VERY SLEEK.

Edward F. McLaughlin Plays a Star Engagement in Brooklyn Society.A Detective and an Angry Son-in-Law Make a Trip to Lake George on Important Business-Anxious Creditors.By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.*

New York, September 2.—An anxious and grief-stricken mother and sister, and several victimized creditors are bewailing the absence of Edward F. McLaughlin of Brooklyn. A social-lawyer and a detective are after him, however, and his capture is only a question of time. One afternoon several months ago a flashily dressed young man entered the jewelry store of Benjamin F. Spink, No. 389 Fulton street, Brooklyn, and asked for Charles J. Squire the manager. When that gentleman appeared he clasped him on the back, grasped his hand cordially and shouted:

"Why, Eddie, old fellow how are you? Don't you know me? Well, well! Why don't you remember how we used to attend school together and how many scrapes we were in? Times have changed since then and I am a millionaire—yes a millionaire—own the Pittsburg Mills at Minneapolis. How long the dapper young fellow would have continued in this strain it would be difficult to say, had not Mr. Squire told him point-blank that he never remembered to have seen him before, and asked his name.

"Why, Eddie McLaughlin. Don't you remember how I used to drive a milk wagon, and suddenly disappeared from Brooklyn?" Mr. Squire did remember the circumstance and thereupon greeted his visitor as a long absent "chum." The young fellow said he had just stepped in to purchase a diamond ring for his sweetheart. He selected a handsome solitaire, took from an apparently well-filled pocketbook $75 and handed it over, saying he would call again on the following day to visit Mr. Squire and they soon became so well acquainted that Squire came to regard him as a fast friend and associate.

Mr. Squire introduced him to some young ladies and on many occasions one of them occupied a room beside the gay young man, while another occupied a carriage with "Squire" McLaughlin, seemed to have a full purse and his friends willingly permitted him to take two gold watches (one of which he said he lost) a diamond lace pin, a gold-headed cane, a diamond shirt stud and several other valuable articles of jewelry, valued at about $400, on credit. McLaughlin cunningly excused himself for a failure to pay cash by saying that he had money at the Brooklyn Commercial bank, in which interest was due in a few days. He disliked diminishing the amounts of his deposits owing to the fact that he might lose the interest should he do so. Mr. Squire had become, as he thought, so thoroughly acquainted with McLaughlin that he suspected nothing wrong about him. Indeed, he esteemed it as a great privilege to accommodate his newly found friend. One evening, a few weeks ago, a very stable keeper from Cascon avenue, called upon him and asked that he should settle a bill of $70, which McLaughlin had incurred. He refused to pay it, but before he secured an opportunity to see McLaughlin again, Mr. Jacob Reimes, a livery man at Clinton and Park avenues, asked him to settle for $300 for a horse which he claimed McLaughlin had purchased without furnishing any material collateral. Mr. Squire immediately sought McLaughlin. The latter refused to settle, and thereupon he was present hard up. He, however, showed

A VICTIMOUS RECIPE for the purchase money of the horse, and asked Mr. Squire to take the animal in part payment of his debt. He also promised to cancel the entire obligation by July 15. Notwithstanding McLaughlin's actions, Squire and he still remained fast friends. In June last they attended a picnic of the Manhattan Club, at the Hudson River. There they met the Misses Farnsworth Alice Buckley, two charming girls, twenty and twenty-two years old, respectively, and daughters of Mr. William N. Buckley of the firm of Kirkman & Son, No. 30 Catherine street, this city. They reside at No. 44 South Elliott Place, Brooklyn. The quartet went loading and riding, and when they returned home, McLaughlin, who had apparently been smitten by Miss Fannie, became a constant caller at her home. To their great surprise, however, he soon transferred his affections from Fannie to her older sister, Alice. To her he was as devoted through the month of July, and finally proposed marriage. He was refused on the ground of too short an acquaintance. His devotion continued, however, and when Mr. Buckley and his daughters, Sarah and Alice, were about to leave for Saratoga, two weeks ago, he suddenly appeared with a landau and took them to the boat. Although at first apparently not intending to accompany them, he finally announced his wish to do so and a few hours later saw the entire party settled at a hotel at the Springs. McLaughlin was constantly at his sweethearts' side, took her driving and boating and spent money lavishly. He surprised Mr. Buckley one day by asking a loan of his trunk, containing his check-book, he said, would arrive in a day or two and then he would give Mr. Buckley the money for the money on the Manhattan Bank. Mr. Buckley lent him $300, and being called back to the city last Friday night he left his daughters in charge of McLaughlin, with the understanding that he should trail Lake George for a few days before returning to the city. He intrusted to young McLaughlin the return tickets of the young ladies and money to settle for their board at the Sagamore. On arriving in this city he was astounded to learn that McLaughlin was not known at the Manhattan Bank; that he had intercepted a Saratoga letter to Mr. Buckley revealing

HIS TRUE CHARACTER; that, instead of his owning real estate in Brooklyn, the Pittsburg Mills in Minneapolis, and having accounts in the Commercial and Brooklyn banks, he was as poor as a church mouse. He had a mother who worked at dress-making in a little $12-a-month tenement at No. 375 Cascon avenue, and a sister who serves Lozier, the dry-goods man, as a cashier. On learning these facts his son-in-law, Mr. Henry Coddington, and Detective Zundt of the Brooklyn police, were dispatched on Sunday for Lake George, for the purpose of apprehending the swindler. At a late hour last night Mr. Buckley had heard nothing from them. He is almost frantic over the position in which his daughters have been placed. McLaughlin and sister are nearly crazy by the disgrace the young couple have brought upon them, while numerous creditors are anxiously awaiting their apprehension. McLaughlin is described as a man of about 28 years, five feet eight inches in height, of stout build, with sandy hair and moustache. He was dressed when Mr. Buckley last saw him in an indigo blue suit and a light derby hat.

THE NEW YORK STAGE.

Successful Openings at the Fifth Avenue and Comique—"Called Back."

New York, September 2.—The regular season of the Fifth Avenue Theater opened with great success last night. "Called Back" can safely be called an unusually excellent and effective play. The play, which may well be said to have been "adapted" by the authors, is really indebted to the written story for little more than the characters and the suggestions in making the two leading characters lovers long before the heroine, Pauline, becomes a mother and sister are nearly crazy by the disgrace the young couple have brought upon them, while numerous creditors are anxiously awaiting their apprehension. McLaughlin is described as a man of about 28 years, five feet eight inches in height, of stout build, with sandy hair and moustache. He was dressed when Mr. Buckley last saw him in an indigo blue suit and a light derby hat.

HARRISMAN A HART reopened their Theatre Comique last evening with a new comedy named "Investigation." The plot of the piece is based on the many legislative investigations of late winter and is a happy hit at the time which originated with "Reform." Roosevelt DANCY Flynn (Ed. Harrigan) is a house agent of the modern build and rents a building of doubtful safety to Mrs. Belinda Tugge (Annie Yeomans), for a cooking school. Other incidents, recited by D'Arcy Flynn, are used by an astrologer and an opium joint manager. The cooking school, opium joint and astrologer's barbers are all subjects of investigation, and here is where the great investigators are superbly burlesqued. During the piece, Mrs. Tugge gives a lesson in the Theatre Comique for her cooking school, and Harrigan as Romeo and Annie Yeomans as Juliet create an endless amount of humor. Five new songs are introduced: "There will be lovers as long as long as love goes round," "The Plum Pudding," "The Boogie," "Hello Bobby," and "The man that knows it all." The full strength of the Comique cast is in the play, including Ed Harrigan, Tony Hart, and Johnny Wild.

KENTUCKY POLITICS.

A Colony of Negroes Assaulted for Voting the Democratic Ticket.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
LEXINGTON, Ky., September 2.—Maddoxtown, a few miles from here, is a village inhabited almost entirely by colored people. Yesterday three colored residents of the town came here and swore out a warrant for the arrest of a Marcus McClain, a white man, charging him with being one of a gang of eight or ten men who made a raid on Maddoxtown and mortally wounded Henry Nichols. These men say that at 10 o'clock last night the gang, who are unknown to them, attacked their village, fired fifteen shots into some of the houses and their retreat was cornered near by. An hour later they again fired about the same number of shots, retreating again to the cornfield. They kept up these charges until a val of about an hour until 4 o'clock in the morning, when they left in good order, having fired more than a hundred shots into the various houses. In the charge they made at 3 o'clock one of the gang as he was running, shot a man named Henry Nichols, who was standing in a yard. The ball passed through Nichols' bowels, inflicting a mortal wound. After 4 o'clock in the morning the gang left, Cunningham, Green and Carr, the men who came to swear out the warrant, saw three white men leave the cornfield one of whom they recognized as Marcus McClain, but the other two they did not know. They know no reason why the gang should be harassed in such a manner unless the town is a political one. They state further that several such attacks have been made upon Maddoxtown since the late election, when a number of the colored men living there voted the Democratic ticket.

But Indications Point to a Renewal of Hostilities at Any Hour.

Criticism of the Course of Governor Hood.
-Making Political Capital Out of the Strike-The Miners Sulky and Suspicious.
-A Review of the Situation.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, September 2.—The Hocking Valley situation is far from being in a hopeful condition. It is strained to the last degree. The feeling on both sides is becoming more and more bitter, and on the part of the miners, actual violence against the property of the coal companies has been reported. The miners are sulky and suspicious, and the coal companies are making political capital out of the strike. The Governor's course is being criticized, and the situation is a review of the situation.

MOST BITTERLY
as vacillating in his purposes and having greater regard for his party's interest than the enforcement of the law and the protection of life and property. On the other hand, his friends urge that the Governor's visit was an act of wisdom, and that his experience with the Cincinnati riot, when he kept away from the point of danger, and that he set a good example by his conduct, and that he made a personal inspection of the seat of trouble. Advice from different points in the troubled district shows that peace is not fully established. At New Straitsville there was a good deal of shooting during Sunday night, though no organized body was in the field and no casualties reported. It was rumored that a secret meeting had been held, but nothing of its purpose is known. A rumor is current that no more trouble will occur until the mine owners attempt to bring in more "blacklegs." This cannot be true, for sooner than two or three weeks, it will require that much time to rebuild the burned houses, and the miners are sitting around and chatting as if nothing unusual was occurring, but it is plain to see that there are still many who are not satisfied.

UPON THE STREETS OF COLUMBUS it was difficult to tell by what party it was most bitterly denounced. One telegram from a leading Democrat sent over the wires to Governor Hood's office, and another from a Republican to the same effect. It is understood here that you are being run by Allen O. Myers. The Sheriff has demanded, and refused the Governor's lives and property. If any lives are lost or property destroyed to-night you will be held directly responsible.

AN ATTACK AT BUCHLER, Ohio, special says. "Everything is quiet here and no attack is anticipated in the day time. About 100 strikers moved on Buchler last night and fired on the guards. The fire being promptly returned, the strikers fled. Casualties are reported. Three hundred militia reached the valley last night and were placed in Snook Hollow, Sandusky and Longstreth. The strikers report that they were not fired on during the attack at Longstreth, Sunday night, two fatalities. Bridges are being threatened and a patrol train was kept running all night.

DISARMING THE TROOPS.
COLUMBUS, Ohio, September 2.—The strike to-day is the most quiet at any time since the strike began. No damage to person or property resulted from the attack at Buchler. The Governor has ordered all the militia companies which were being held for moving orders, dismissed for the present with exception of company K, of Delaware, which will be taken to the vicinity of the mines this afternoon to be used at different points on the railroad.

A LONG SWING.
Martin Weinberger Swings From Pittsburgh, Pa., Into Kentucky.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., September 2.—Martin Weinberger was hanged this morning in the county jail-yard for the murder of Louis Gottfried, a peddler, near Sewickley, on the night of June 18, 1882. The execution was private, not more than fifty persons, including the members of the press, being present. The condemned man slept well last night, and at an early hour this morning he took a hearty breakfast. He was then taken up to the gallows, and after a few moments' delay, he was hanged. There were no religious services, and after the noon was adjusted, the trap sprung and the condemned man fell. Death resulted from strangulation, and in fifteen minutes life was pronounced extinct. Weinberger was a Jew, and was born in Hungary, and it is believed to be the second in the United States. His friends are making every effort to obtain a commutation of the sentence, but the Pardon Board and Governor Patterson refused to interfere.

THE A. M. JARRETT Consumed by an Incendiary Fire This Morning.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
QUINCY, Ill., September 2.—This morning, at about 8 o'clock, the steamer A. M. Jarrett, owned by A. M. Jarrett, Mayor of Quincy, was discovered to be on fire at its moorings, near the Island on the opposite side of the river. Doc. McCann, the watchman, was the only man on board and he thinks the fire was of an incendiary nature. There had been no fire on the boat for twenty-four hours, and a man on the island, with whom McCann had some difficulty, had threatened to put him in the river. After the cable parted the doomed boat drifted out in the bay and grounded in three feet of water. She burned to the water's edge and is a total wreck. The A. M. Jarrett was built three years ago at a cost of $15,000. She was insured for $5,000.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
QUINCY, Ill., September 2.—This morning, at about 8 o'clock, the steamer A. M. Jarrett, owned by A. M. Jarrett, Mayor of Quincy, was discovered to be on fire at its moorings, near the Island on the opposite side of the river. Doc. McCann, the watchman, was the only man on board and he thinks the fire was of an incendiary nature. There had been no fire on the boat for twenty-four hours, and a man on the island, with whom McCann had some difficulty, had threatened to put him in the river. After the cable parted the doomed boat drifted out in the bay and grounded in three feet of water. She burned to the water's edge and is a total wreck. The A. M. Jarrett was built three years ago at a cost of $15,000. She was insured for $5,000.

A MATCH FOR SULLIVAN.

Tom Dolan Plays With the St. Louis Unions.

Games Yesterday—The St. Louis-Indianapolis Series To-Morrow—Hundred Consolidation of the Athletics and Mets—Cote Brilliant.

One of the most important challenges recently issued to the champion has been that of Prof. Laffin of New York, who wants to arrange a match at an early day as may suit Mr. Sullivan. I am not trying to make anything by this affair, but I am anxious to aid in settling the matter for the erection of the Bartholdi statue. The receipts, after expenses have been deducted, in the event of my winning, will go to the fund. "Suppose Mr. Sullivan objects to sparring on these terms?" "I will consent to give him the entire receipts, after deducting expenses, if he wins, and while I am anxious to aid the statue fund, I am also anxious of meeting Sullivan, and thus my challenge is made so clear and broad that I don't think he can refuse to accept. I will meet him any time during September, he may name on ten days' notice, the contest to be four rounds of three minutes each, and the exhibition to take place at Madison Square Garden." Sullivan's reply will be looked for with much interest.

Tom Dolan's Case.
While not an expelled or released member of the St. Louis club Tom Dolan has been secured by the St. Louis Unions, notwithstanding the protestations of the latter club, and he played with them in Boston yesterday. It is a very bad piece of business and will only serve to widen the breach between the local clubs. In reference to Dolan's case a correspondent of the Sporting Life says:

The one absorbing topic in baseball circles the past week has been the deliberate jump of Tom Dolan, under contract with the St. Louis club, to the Boston Unions. It is a clear case of contract-breaking, though planned and executed at different periods. Your readers have doubtless by this time learned some of the circumstances of the jump and the causes leading thereto, but all the facts in the case have not been fully set forth through the press outside of St. Louis. Apropos of our sensible, plain-spoken editorial in last week's issue, wherein contract-breakers are handled without gloves, the case of Tom Dolan is the first from St. Louis to be added to your list. For the good of the players of the St. Louis club, it is to be hoped it will be the last. At the present writing Tom Dolan is still in the city, presumably awaiting expulsion or release by President Von der Ahe, neither of which he will get. He is still under contract with the St. Louis club, and at present he is placed in a very bad predicament. Henry V. Jones, a writer, and again in public print and in private that he would never emigrate from St. Louis. It has been his proud boast, and he has been lauded in press and public for his honorable and straightforward course. In interviews published at the time of Dolan's jump, Mr. Jones stated that Tom Dolan came to him and informed him that he had been expelled by Mr. Von der Ahe, which, upon inquiry, proved to be a gross mistake. Dolan, as related, has never been expelled from the St. Louis club.

St. Louis vs. Indianapolis.
These clubs resume their series at Sportsman's Park to-morrow and play off two championship games postponed from previous dates. The Browns will endeavor to turn the tide and at all events have been buffing against late and at all events two very interesting and hotly contested struggles will take place. The morning game will begin at 10:30 and the afternoon game at 3:30. Visitors will find this a most pleasant and interesting manner to pass time.

The Mets and Athletics.
A report comes from New York that a consolidation will take place between the Metropolitans and the Athletics of Philadelphia, and that the two organizations will be merged into one as soon as the season closes. The Mets, notwithstanding their good standing in the fight, have not made any money this year, and it is questionable whether they have made expense. The Athletics, however, will always make money, and the Mets, if a good team, backed by their organization, and hence the merger of interest. Kansas Hollis, a five-year-old, Orr and Bowman will go to the New York while Repschlager, Lynch, Troy, Nelson, Kennedy, Brady and others will go to the Athletics.

St. Louis Unions vs. Baltimore.
The game at Baltimore yesterday resulted in a victory for St. Louis by a score of 6 to 1. St. Louis batted heavily after the first inning, taking a strong lead and winning finally with ease. They batted Lee for ten clean hits, while the Baltimore only got four off Sweeney. Tom Dolan caught for the St. Louis Unions and did very badly, being unable to handle Sweeney's rifle shots, and having several passed balls. Dunlap led the battery with three clean hits.

Games Yesterday.
In the American League yesterday the Metropolitans gave the Brooklyn a terrible beating by a score of 13 to 0 at Brooklyn. At Toledo the Cincinnati were victorious by a score of 12 to 7. At Pittsburgh the result was a tie, the Pirates beating the Union team by a score of 4 to 1; the St. Louis Unions beat the Baltimore team by a score of 5 to 2. In the League competition the results were: Chicago, 4; Boston, Philadelphia 6; Detroit 3; at Philadelphia.

MURDER BY MOONLIGHT.
An Obstreperous Pienlecker Fatally Wounded—Her Assailant Arrested.

The moonlight picnic at the Compton Avenue Base-Ball Park, held last night, by some colored people, was brought to a sudden end by a difficulty among the merry-makers which will probably terminate in a tragedy. Among the gayest of the dusky belles was Nancy McFee. Some of the managers of entertainment were annoyed, not to say shocked, at Nancy's boisterous enjoyment of the festivities in progress and repeatedly requested her to restrain herself. Nancy, however, was disposed to comply and became still quieter. About 1:30 o'clock this morning when the attendance had increased considerably by the arrival of others and the dance, a contumacious action, John Cowell, also colored, who had been depurized to preserve order, took the woman aside and endeavored to quiet her. She became very abusive then, and the two were soon involved in an altercation, during which Cowell rendered furious blows by the woman's defiance, seized an axe and struck her on the head.

The woman fell to the ground insensible, and bleeding profusely from an ugly gash on the left side of her head. Her friends rushed at once to her aid and for a moment a general and free fight was imminent. During the excitement Cowell managed to escape. Nancy was placed in a conveyance and removed to her home, 3023 Gratiot street, where she was attended by Dr. Purdie. The doctor could not tell then if the wound would prove fatal. Cowell was arrested by the police at his residence on Twenty-first street, between West and Franklin avenues, about 2 o'clock a. m., and locked up at the Third District Sub-Station. At noon the woman was reported in a precarious condition.

Beat His Wife and Killed Himself.
Joseph Zins, a brewer, who had been drinking considerably of late, quarreled with his wife on Sunday and struck her. Yesterday his animosity was again manifested toward her, but he seemed to be somewhat unbalanced in mind. After spending a few hours down town drinking with some friends he returned to his home, 318 South Twenty-second street, and killed his wife by a single shot, told him that she had anything to say to him now was her last chance, and then bursting into tears, walked into another room and hanged himself through the head, killing himself instantly. He was 31 years old.

The liabilities are considerably less than this, a $3,000 claim of the State of the largest being the largest. The suspension was attributed by the company to the stringency of the money market, and not to business losses. They expect to resume in a short time with the consent of their creditors. The company is only two years old. Its principal members being Dixon, Young and George W. Allen.

ARCHBISHOP KENRICK.

His Appearance at Kirkwood Looked Forward To.

For some time it had been rumored that Archbishop Kenrick would shortly resume active clerical duties, and when the fact was made known that he would administer confirmation at St. Peter and Paul's and St. Agatha's a common desire placed the date on last Sunday. This was, however, premature, and it was ascertained that the proper days were the 28th and 29th inst. Now the equally pleasing announcement is made that his Grace will perform a similar ceremony at Kirkwood before the end of the month, and as his appearance in the city churches will not occur till so late it is taken for granted that his re-entrance into the sphere of religious activity will occur at Kirkwood. This being so, it is quite likely that his presence in that suburb will draw from the city a large attendance of Catholics, who may find it hard to longer put off the pleasure of seeing this happy departure from a custom which has seemed to a great many unnecessarily rigid in its restriction.
